

Capturing the Moments: Our Journey Together

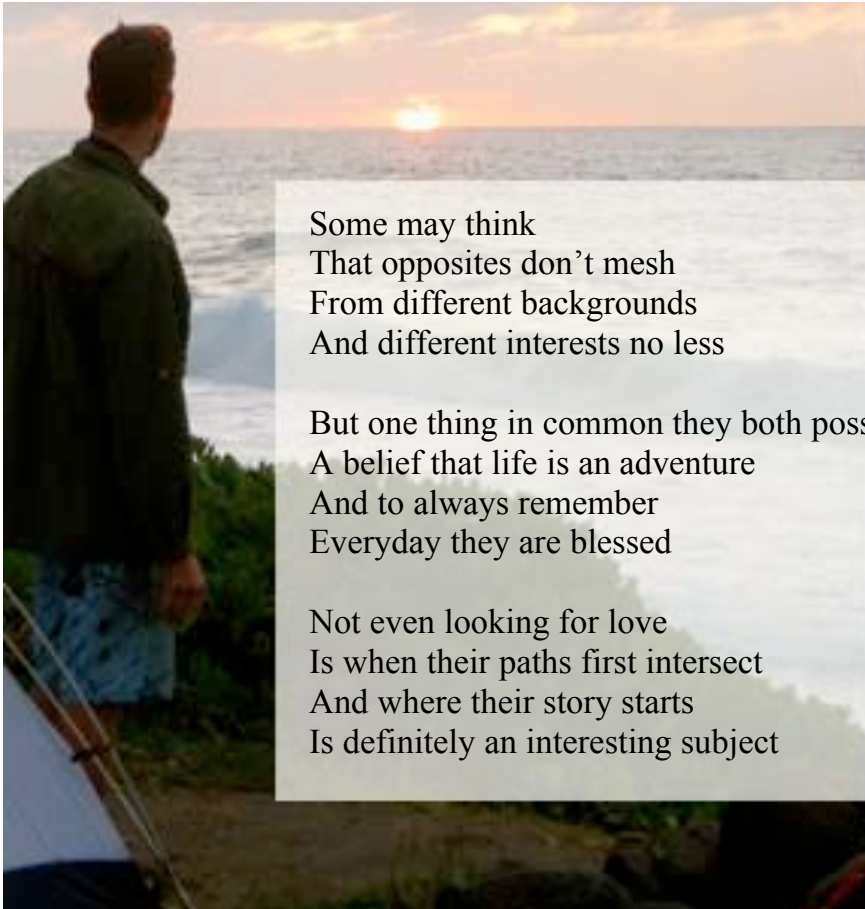

By: Kelley Kohout and Christy Kelly

I'd like to tell you a story
Of a fun and exciting pair
Of one southern gentleman
And a girl with some cute Jersey flare

She studied Engineering
With a minor in Art
As for him
Geography is where he played his part

Soccer is the sport
That she did like
But for him it was always about
Rowing, skiing or a long hike

Some may think
That opposites don't mesh
From different backgrounds
And different interests no less

But one thing in common they both possess
A belief that life is an adventure
And to always remember
Everyday they are blessed

Not even looking for love
Is when their paths first intersect
And where their story starts
Is definitely an interesting subject

On a plane to Zambia
The fates would play their part
For he would first notice her
Sitting quietly working on her art

He asked about her picture
And when she answered he smiled
She thought he was intriguing
And that laugh sure drove her wild

Throughout the school trip
They got to know each other more
And both quietly thought to themselves
They never liked someone
Quite as much as this before

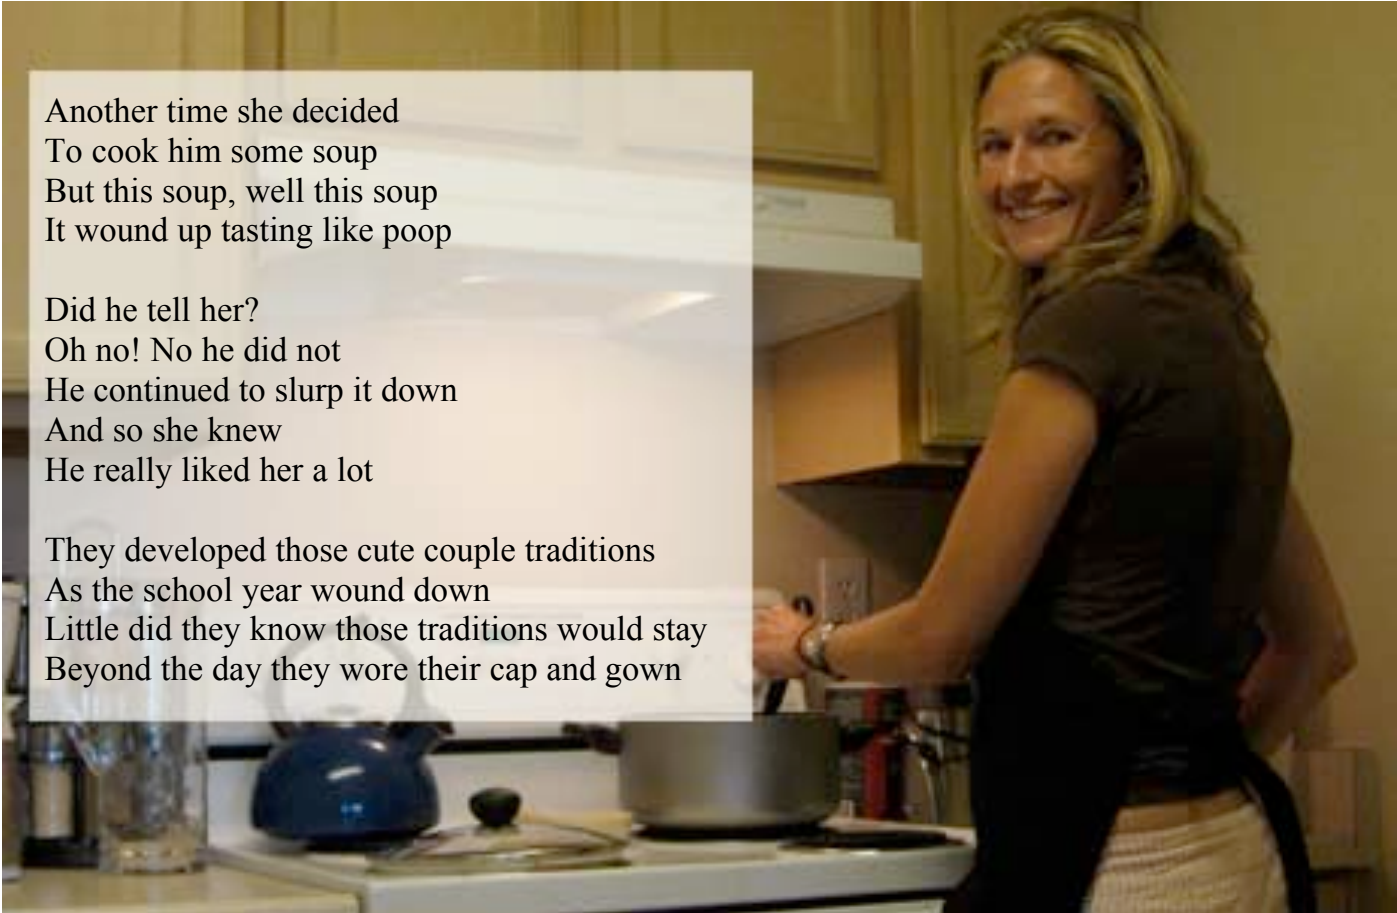

But it was not their time yet
Summer jobs would take them far away
And when they got back to school
It took time before their day

Time after time
At school functions they would meet
And their blossoming love was clear
To the on looking elite

He clearly liked her
Of that there was never any doubt
But his nerves had him rattled
So one day she told him just go ahead already
And ask this lady out!

At the planetarium
He would surprise her with their first date
And staring up at the stars together
They wondered could this be my soul mate?

Another time she decided
To cook him some soup
But this soup, well this soup
It wound up tasting like poop

Did he tell her?
Oh no! No he did not
He continued to slurp it down
And so she knew
He really liked her a lot

They developed those cute couple traditions
As the school year wound down
Little did they know those traditions would stay
Beyond the day they wore their cap and gown

Today one that remains
Most true to their hearts
For Valentine's Day you won't find
Fancy gifts in their carts

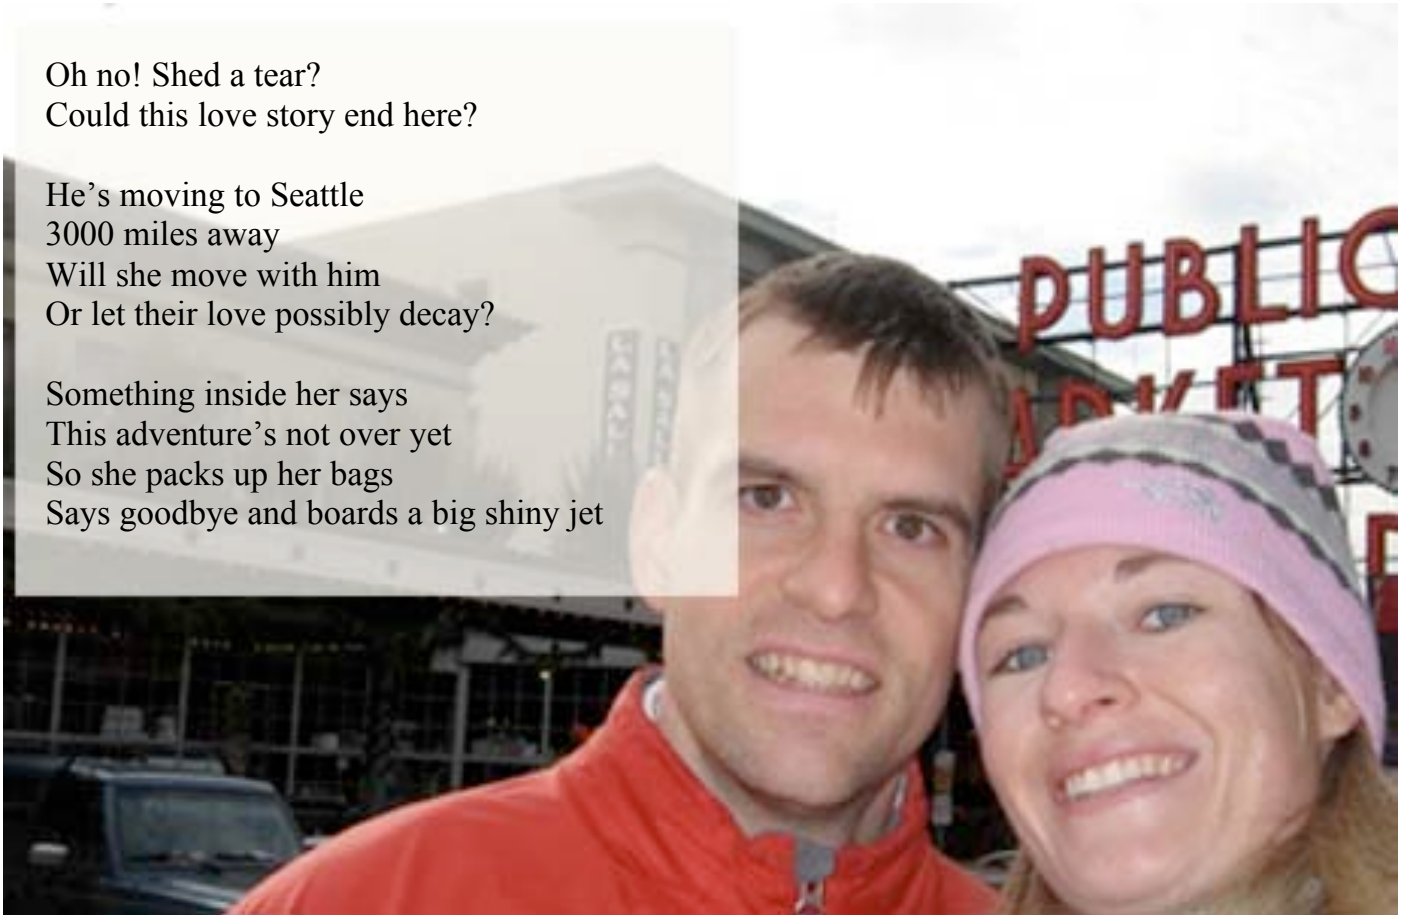

Instead they hold true
To the memory of their first
One milkshake with two flexi straws
Quenching their thirst!

For to this couple you will find
One truth remains strong
When your highest priority
Is to spend time together
You can't go wrong

Oh no! Shed a tear?
Could this love story end here?

He's moving to Seattle
3000 miles away
Will she move with him
Or let their love possibly decay?

Something inside her says
This adventure's not over yet
So she packs up her bags
Says goodbye and boards a big shiny jet

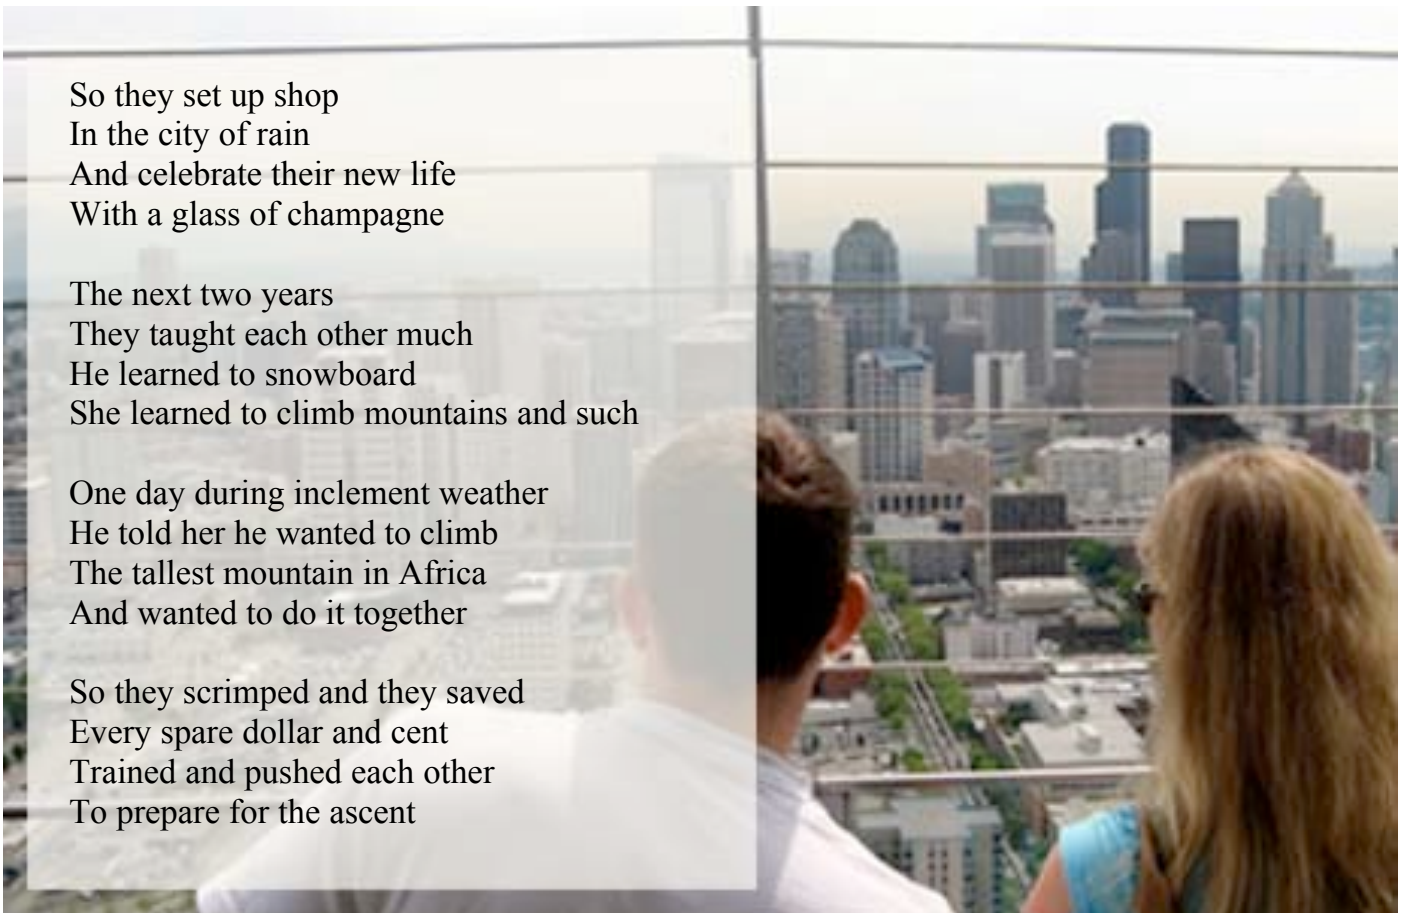

So they set up shop
In the city of rain
And celebrate their new life
With a glass of champagne

The next two years
They taught each other much
He learned to snowboard
She learned to climb mountains and such

One day during inclement weather
He told her he wanted to climb
The tallest mountain in Africa
And wanted to do it together

So they scrimped and they saved
Every spare dollar and cent
Trained and pushed each other
To prepare for the ascent

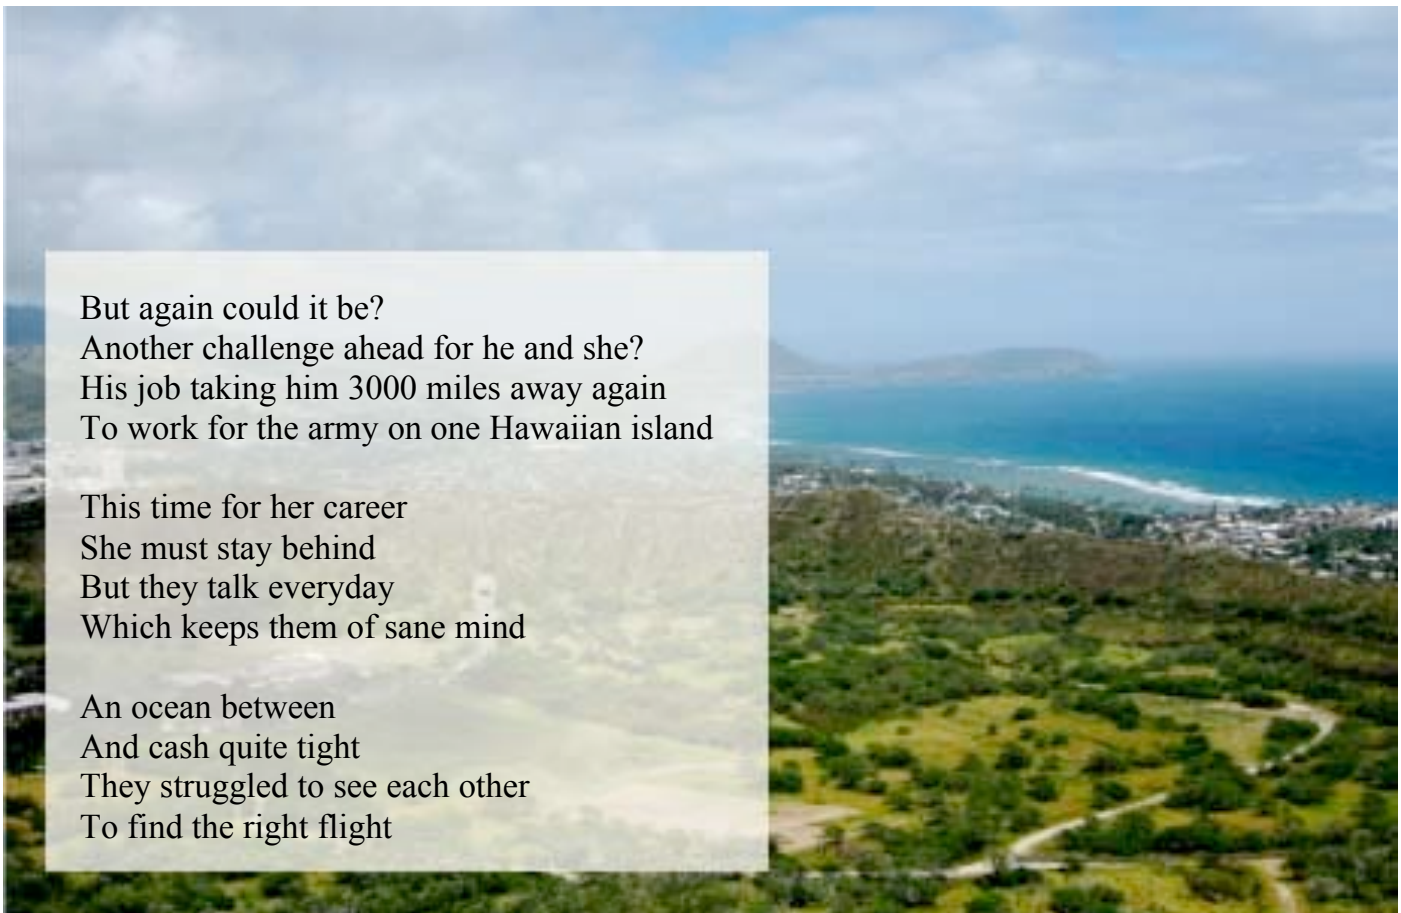

When they reached the top of Kilimanjaro
He saw in her a fire
And realized if they supported each other
They could accomplish anything they desire

And it was in that moment,
In that moment he knew
To his other half, she was the one,
She was the glue

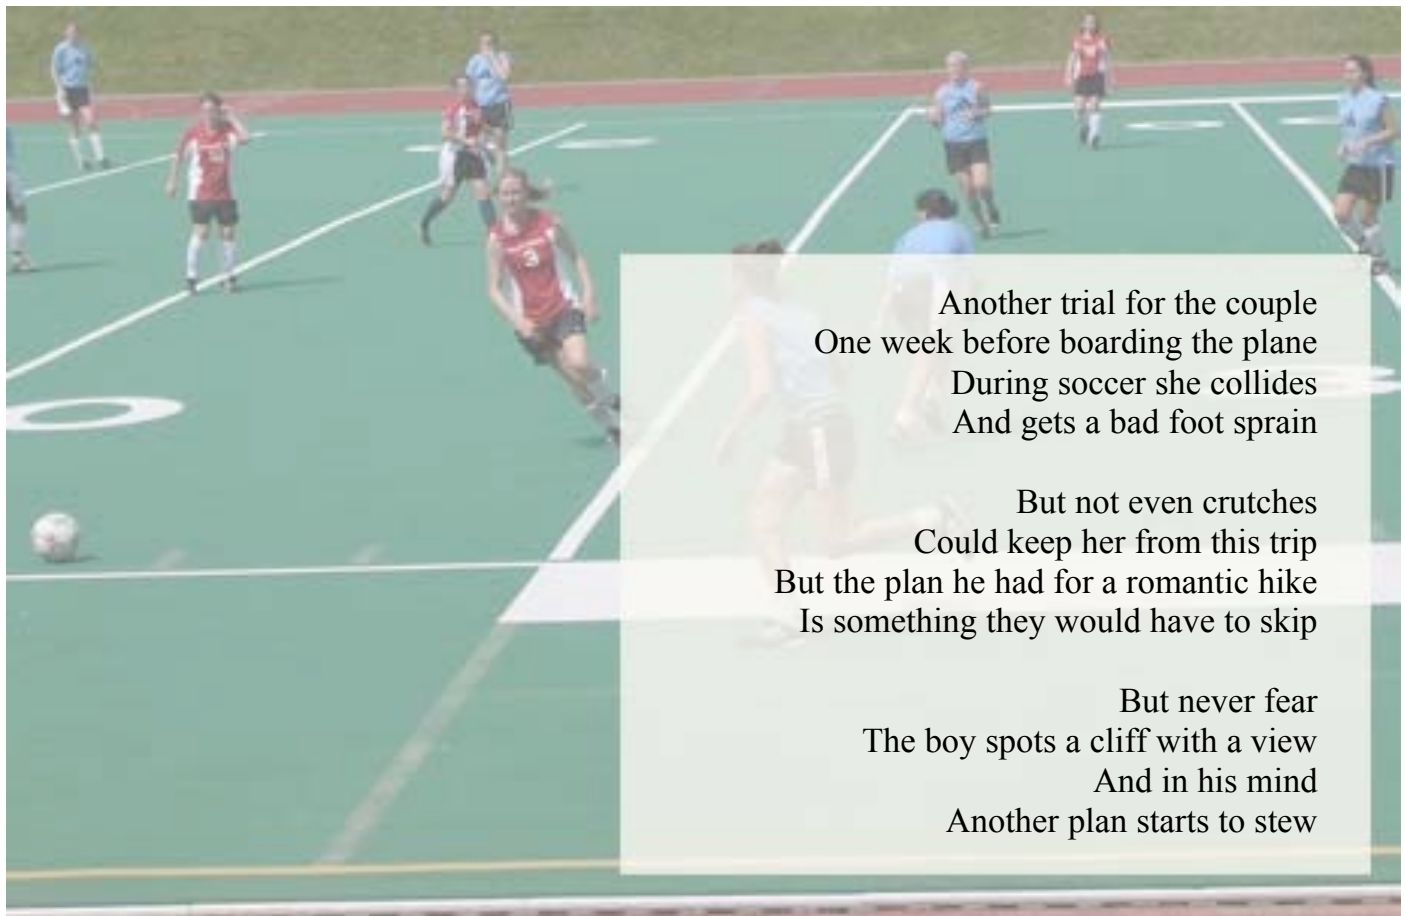

So he called his mom and told her
He had found the one
And the planning to ask her
An important question had begun

But again could it be?
Another challenge ahead for he and she?
His job taking him 3000 miles away again
To work for the army on one Hawaiian island

This time for her career
She must stay behind
But they talk everyday
Which keeps them of sane mind

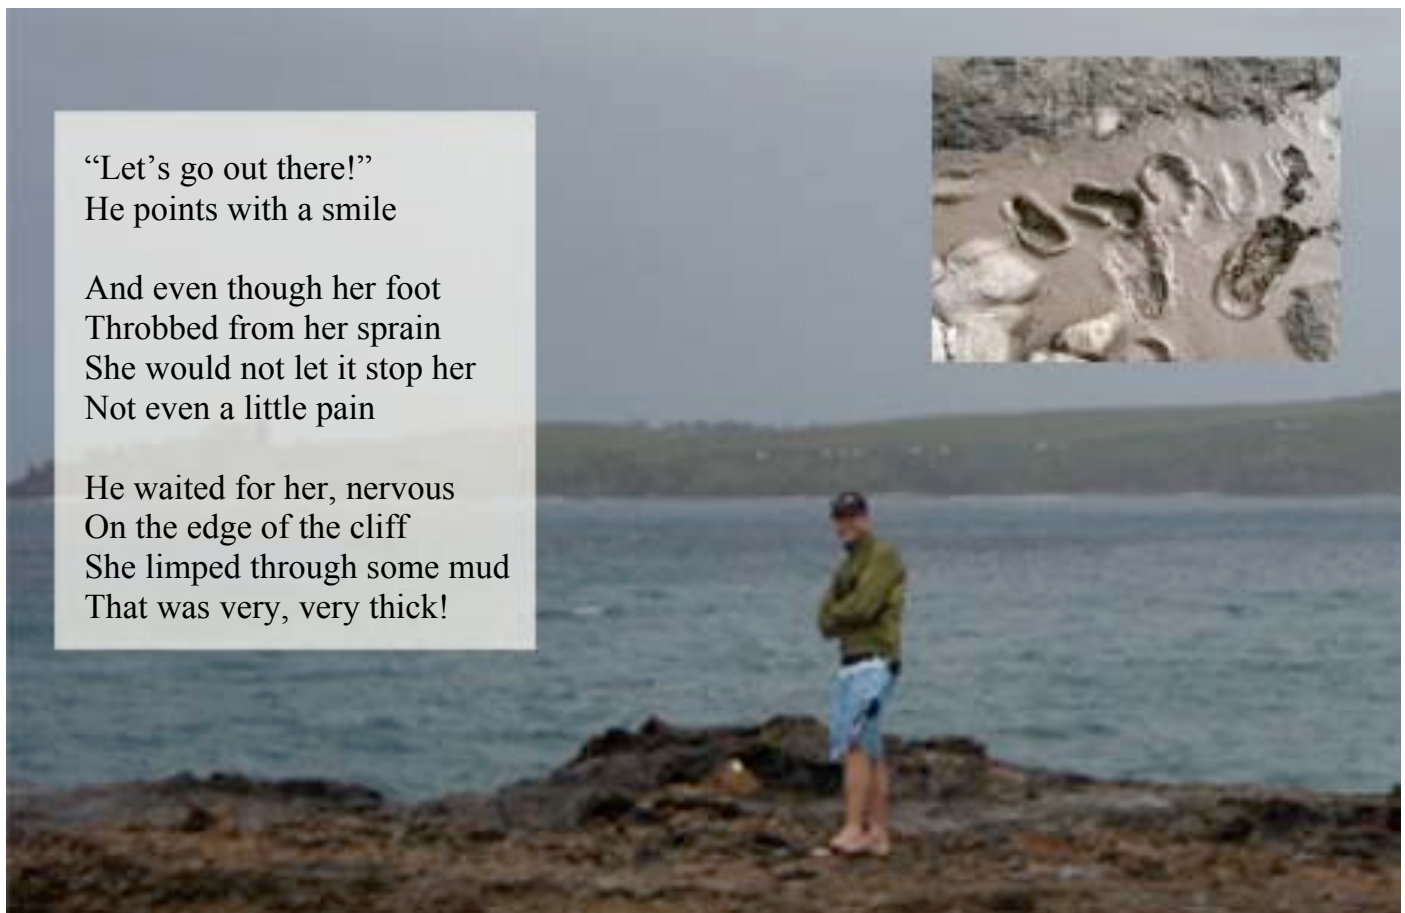

An ocean between
And cash quite tight
They struggled to see each other
To find the right flight

Another trial for the couple
One week before boarding the plane
During soccer she collides
And gets a bad foot sprain

But not even crutches
Could keep her from this trip
But the plan he had for a romantic hike
Is something they would have to skip

But never fear
The boy spots a cliff with a view
And in his mind
Another plan starts to stew

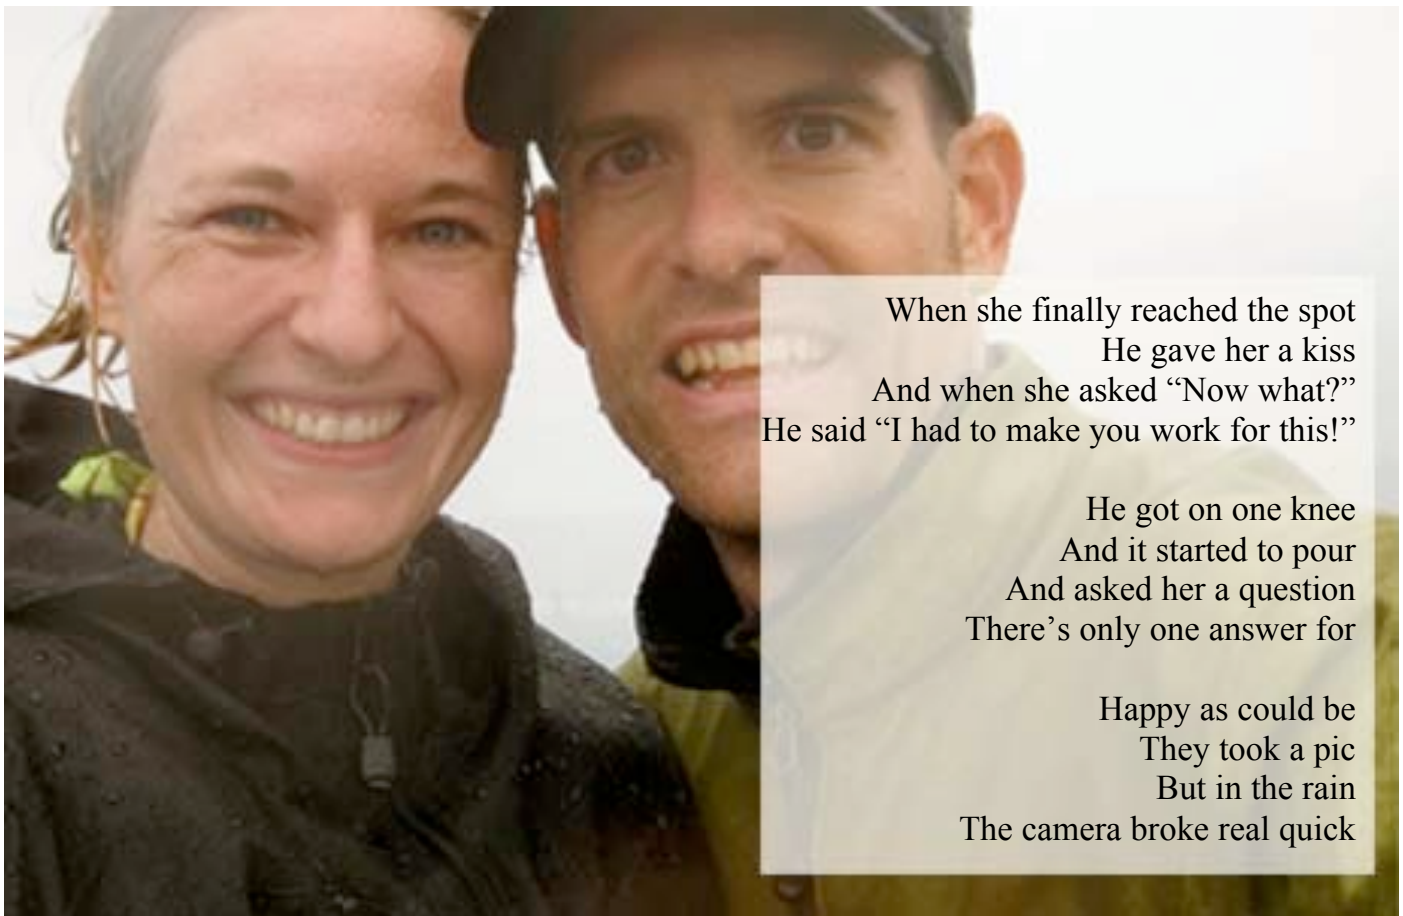

“Let’s go out there!”
He points with a smile

And even though her foot
Throbbled from her sprain
She would not let it stop her
Not even a little pain

He waited for her, nervous
On the edge of the cliff
She limped through some mud
That was very, very thick!

When she finally reached the spot
He gave her a kiss
And when she asked "Now what?"
He said "I had to make you work for this!"

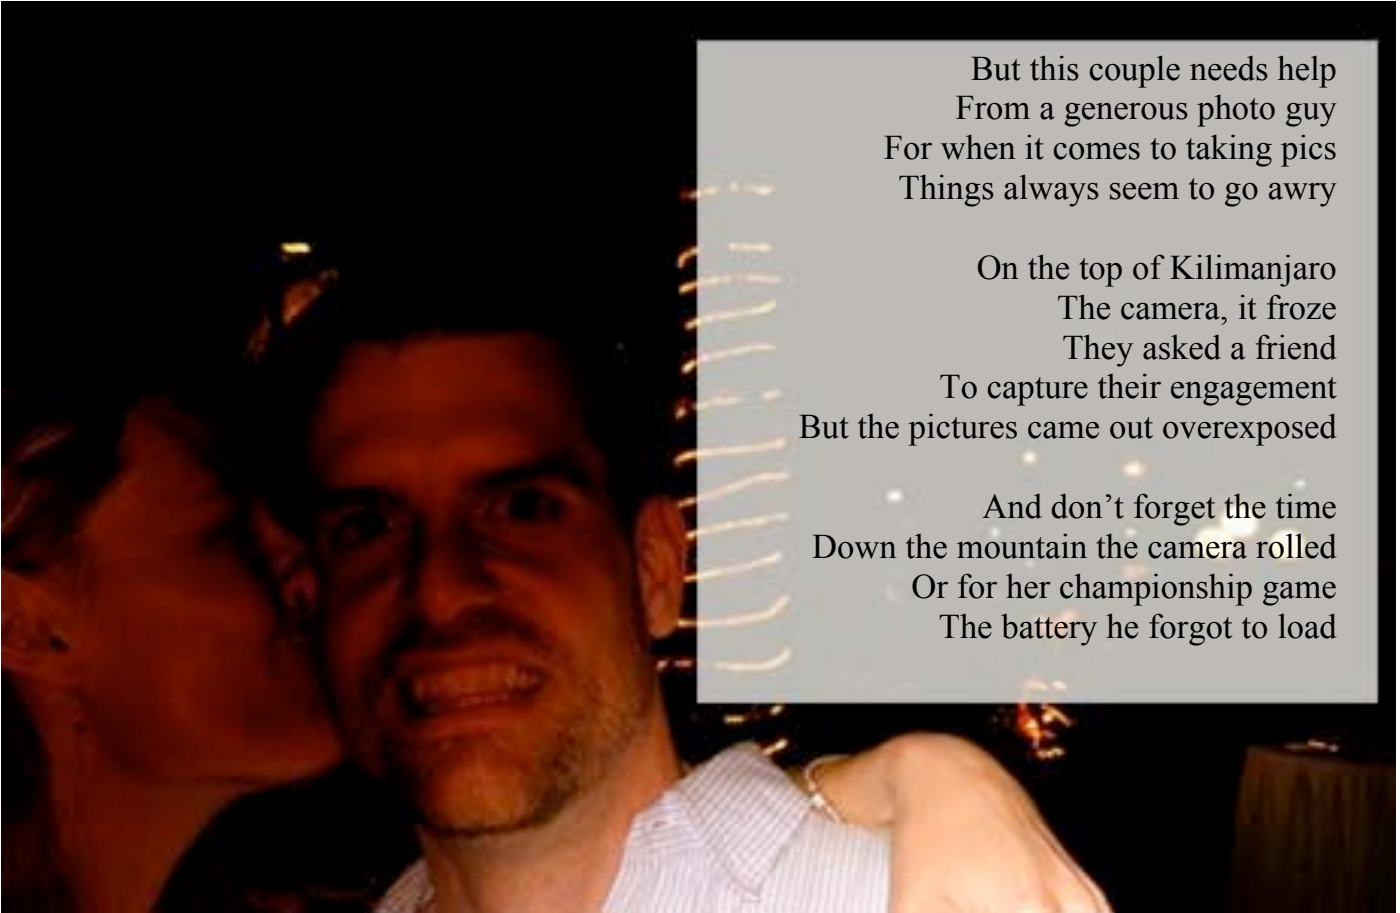

He got on one knee
And it started to pour
And asked her a question
There's only one answer for

Happy as could be
They took a pic
But in the rain
The camera broke real quick

4 years together
Now they plan and they prep
Mariachis, friends and family
In 2010 to witness the next step

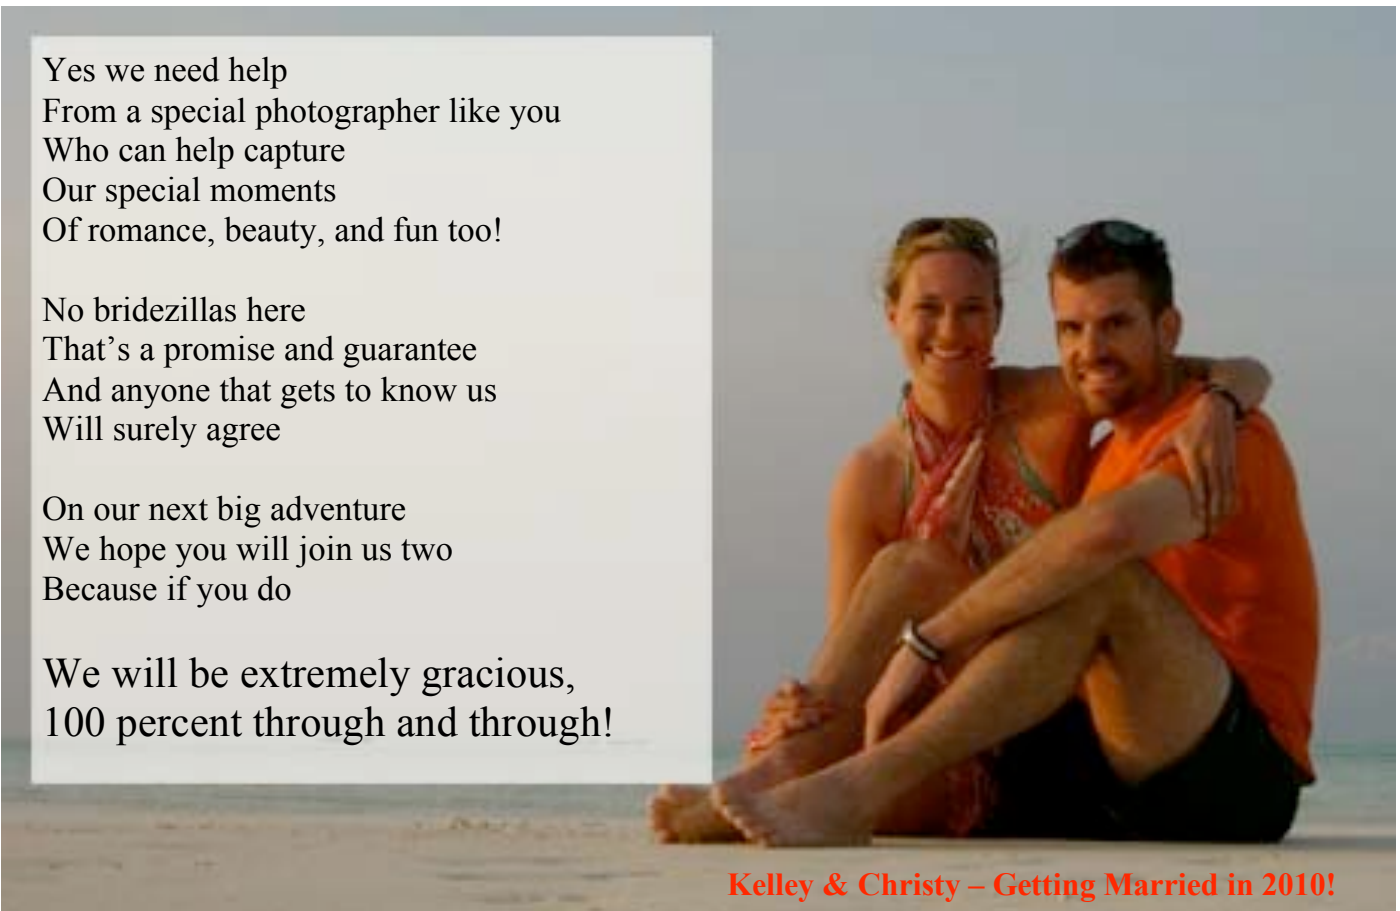

For this couple of adventure
Mexico makes sense
A place, with sandy white beaches
Mixed in with a lot of cultural substance

But this couple needs help
From a generous photo guy
For when it comes to taking pics
Things always seem to go awry

On the top of Kilimanjaro
The camera, it froze
They asked a friend
To capture their engagement
But the pictures came out overexposed

And don't forget the time
Down the mountain the camera rolled
Or for her championship game
The battery he forgot to load

Yes we need help
From a special photographer like you
Who can help capture
Our special moments
Of romance, beauty, and fun too!

No bridezillas here
That's a promise and guarantee
And anyone that gets to know us
Will surely agree

On our next big adventure
We hope you will join us two
Because if you do

We will be extremely gracious,
100 percent through and through!

Kelley & Christy – Getting Married in 2010!